

SOC 222 : SOCIOLOGY OF FAMILY AND INTIMATE RELATIONSHIPS

Transcript title

Soc Family/Intimate Relations

Credits

4

Grading mode

Standard letter grades

Total contact hours

40

Lecture hours

40

Recommended preparation

WR 121Z.

Course Description

Examines the connections between family and intimate relations and society. Addresses the impact of economic, social, and political conditions on families and intimate relations past and present.

Course learning outcomes

1. Draw historical and social group comparisons of family life and intimate relationships.
2. Examine the intersection of race, class, gender, and sexual orientation on families and intimate relationships.
3. Analyze political viewpoints and social policies impacting families and intimate relationships.
4. Apply sociological theories to a variety of sociological and social issues related to families and intimate relationships.

Content outline

1. Sociological perspective
2. A sociology of family and intimate relationships
3. Intersectional theory applied to family and intimate relationships
4. A sociology of sexualities
5. A historical perspective on families and intimate relationships

Required materials

Textbook required.

General education/Related instruction lists

- Social Science